Hit the target with Haddon Hall's Archery School this August Bank Holiday

During the August Bank Holiday, Haddon Hall will be running a three day Archery School, giving visitors the chance to see if they can hit the target!

During Haddon Hall's heyday it was law that every able man over 24 years, should be able to shoot a target at 220 yards. The Archery School will take history in its stride, teaching participants aged 10 and over to take a bow in hand and learn the basic skills required to play the sport. Lessons will include learning about the equipment and the right techniques to get the best results.

The Archery School will be run by Mark Allsop, who has been an archer for 10 years and has a Grand Master Bowman certification. He is an Archery GB Level 2 Coach and has a team of qualified staff on hand to supervise each and every bow shot.

Each session will cost £20 per person, or a discounted price of £50 for those who take part in all three sessions.
